Matthew's Non-Messianic Mapping of Messianic Texts

Evidences of a Broadly Eschatological Hermeneutic

Bruce Harold Henning,
Emmaus Bible College

In Matthew's Non-Messianic Mapping of Messianic Texts, Bruce Henning challenges the popular description of Matthew's use of fulfillment language as Christological to the more general category "broadly eschatological" by exploring case studies which map a messianic image to Jesus' disciples.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in Matthew's use of Scripture, particularly the use of his fulfillment motif, as well as anyone concerned with the overlap of Christology, Ecclesiology, and Eschatology.

The Challenge of the Mosaic Torah in Judaism, Christianity, and Islam

Edited by Antti Laato, Åbo Akademi University

This volume addresses the theological issues which arose when different ancient religious groups within three Abrahamic religions attempted to understand or define their opinion on the Mosaic Torah. The twelve chapters explore various instances of accepting, modifying, ignoring, criticizing, and vilifying the Mosaic Torah.

READERSHIP: All interested in the relations between Abrahamic religions find this study very stimulating because its theme "Mosaic Torah" has been a challenge for all three religions since they were formed and co-existed.

Hymns, Homilies and Hermeneutics in Byzantium

Edited by Sarah Gador-Whyte, Australian Catholic University, and
Andrew Mellas, St Andrew's Theological College

The essays in Hymns, Homilies and Hermeneutics explore the literature of Byzantine liturgical communities and provide a window into lived Christianity in this period. The liturgical performance of Christian hymns and sermons creatively engaged the faithful in biblical exegesis, invited them to experience theology in song, and shaped their identity. These sacred stories, affective scripts and salvific songs were the literature of a liturgical community – hymns and sermons were heard, and in some cases sung, by lay and monastic Christians throughout the life of Byzantium. In the field of Byzantine studies there is a growing appreciation of the importance of liturgical texts for understanding the many facets of Byzantine Christianity: we are in the midst of a liturgical turn.

READERSHIP: Particularly academic specialists and students working in the areas of history of Christian religion and lay experience of it; those with particular interest in liturgy, hymnography and homiletics.

In The Catechumenate in Late Antique Africa, Matthieu Pignot offers the first historical study of the progressive integration of converts into Christianity as catechumens in late antique African sources, from Augustine of Hippo to 6th-century letters.

Wisdom on the Move explores religious wisdom traditions in Late Antiquity and beyond. It traces the movement of such texts across linguistic, religious and cultural borders. Particular attention is paid to the monastic Apophthegmata patrum.

Jewish Roots of Eastern Christian Mysticism explores influences of Jewish apocalypticism and mysticism on the development of Eastern Christian theology, demonstrating that recent studies of apocalyptic literature, the Qumran Scrolls, Gnosticism, and later Jewish mysticism throw new and welcome light on the sources and continuities of Orthodox spirituality and liturgy.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars of late antique Christianity, particularly specialists of Augustine and other Latin authors. More broadly anyone interested in Christian ritual and teaching practices and in religious conversion.

READERSHIP: All interested in religion or literature of ancient Christianity, especially its various cultural expressions and interactions with other religions; in particular, scholars of wisdom literature and the apophthegmata patrum.

Saving One Another

Philodemus and Paul on Moral Formation in Community

Justin Reid Allison, Prairie College

In Saving One Another: Philodemus and Paul on Moral Formation in Community Justin Reid Allison compares how the Epicurean philosopher Philodemus and the Christian apostle Paul envisioned the members of their communities helping one another to grow into moral maturity. Allison establishes that Philodemus and Paul are more similar than previously noticed in their conception and practice of moral formation in community, and that these similarities offer a critical opportunity to consider important differences between the two as well. By deepening the comparison to include differences alongside similarities, and to include theological and socio-economic facets of communal moral formation, Allison shows that Philodemus and Paul uniquely shed fresh light on one another's texts when understood in comparative perspective.

READERSHIP: Those interested in the lived realities of Philodemus's Epicurean philosophy, of the apostle Paul's Christian theology/philosophy, and the similarities and differences between them.

Violence in the Hebrew Bible

Between Text and Reception

Edited by Jacques van Ruiten,
University of Groningen, and
Koert van Bekkum, Evangelical Theological Faculty Leuven and Theological University Kampen

In Violence in the Hebrew Bible texts of violence in the Hebrew Bible and their reception history are discussed. The central question of the essays is how to allow for a given text's plurality of possible and realised meanings while also retaining the ability to form critical judgments regarding biblical exegesis.

Philo of Alexandria: On the Life of Abraham

Introduction, Translation, and Commentary

Ellen Birnbaum and John Dillon

On the Life of Abraham displays Philo's philosophical, exegetical, and literary genius at its best. Philo begins by introducing the biblical figures Enos, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob as unwritten laws. Then, interweaving literal, ethical, and allegorical interpretations, Philo presents the life and achievements of Abraham, founder of the Jewish nation, in the form of a Greco-Roman bios, or biography. Ellen Birnbaum and John Dillon explain why and how this work is important within the context of Philo's own oeuvre, early Jewish and Christian exegesis, and ancient philosophy. They also offer a new English translation and detailed analyses, in which they elucidate the meaning of Philo's thought, including his perplexing notion that Israel's ancestors were laws in themselves.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars of Philo, biblical literature, ancient Judaism, classics, ancient philosophy, and early Christianity.

Christian Teachers in Second-Century Rome

Schools and Students in the Ancient City

H. Gregory Snyder, Davidson College

Essays in Christian Teachers in Second-Century Rome situate Christian teachers in the social and intellectual context of the Roman urban environment. The teaching and textual work of well-known figures such as Marcion, Justin, Valentinus, and Tatian are discussed, as well as lesser-known and appreciated figures such as Theodotus the Cobbler. Authors probe material and visual evidence on teachers and teaching activity, adopting different theoretical perspectives that go beyond the traditional “church – school” dichotomy: comparative looks at physicians, philosophers and other textual experts; at synagogues, shops and other sites where students gathered around religious entrepreneurs. Taken as a whole, the volume makes a strong case for the sheer diversity of Christian teaching activity in second-century Rome.

READERSHIP: These essays situate second-century Christian teachers such as Marcion, Justin, Valentinus and others in the social and intellectual context of the Roman urban environment, placing their teaching and textual activity in the midst of physicians, philosophers, and other religious experts.

The Tree of Life

Edited by Douglas Estes, South University, Columbia

The tree of life is an iconic visual symbol at the edge of religious thought over the last several millennia. As a show of its significance, the tree book-ends the Christian canon; yet scholarship has paid it minimal attention in the modern era. In The Tree of Life a team of scholars explore the origin, development, meaning, reception, and theology of this consequential yet obscure symbol. The fourteen essays trek from the origins of the tree in the texts and material culture of the ancient Near East, to its notable roles in biblical literature, to its expansion by early church fathers and Gnostics, to its rebirth in medieval art and culture, and to its place in modern theological thought.

Mercy is omnipresent in Catholic debates. Mercy calls to consider an individual's needs and this conflicts with justice necessitating equal treatment for everyone. This is most apparent in the Sacrament of Penance, and other forms of penitence, forgiveness, and reconciliation where mercy both transcends and undermines justice.

READERSHIP: The book will appeal to scholars and students of theology and religious studies. It is of particular interest for church historians, systematic theologians, scholars of Christian ethics, and practical theologians.

In Carlo Passaglia on Church and Virgin, Valfredo Maria Rossi offers an account of the Trinitarian ecclesiology and Mariology of Carlo Passaglia (1812-1887), one of the most neglected but brilliant theologian of the nineteenth century.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of theology and nineteenth-century Catholic renewal, and anyone concerned with systematic theology.

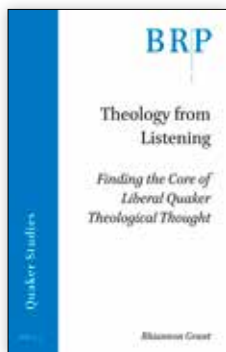

This research guide introduces scholars to the field of Reformed theology, focusing on works of the twentieth and twenty-first centuries in the English language. Martha Moore-Keish explores twenty-one major theological themes, with attention to classical as well as current works.

Liturgical Theology
as a Research Program
Joris Geldhof,
KU Leuven, Belgium

The fundamental intuition of this essay is that liturgical theology does not simply deal with Christian rituals, festivals and sacraments, but with the core of faith itself: God, world, the Christ event, tradition, Church, and redemption.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in the meaning of Christian worship, its flexibility and versatility, and all those who are reflecting about the theological study of liturgy and sacramental mystery.

Ephraim Radner, Hosean Wilderness, and the Church in the Post-Christendom West

A Dialogue on the Shape of Waiting

Amy J. Erickson, Fuller Theological Seminary

Ephraim Radner, Hosean Wilderness, and the Church in the Post-Christendom West offers the first monograph-length treatment of the compelling and perplexing contemporary Anglican theologian Ephraim Radner. While unravelling his distinctive approach to biblical hermeneutics and ecclesiology, it queries the state of today's secularized church through a theological interpretation of an equally enigmatic writer: the prophet Hosea. It concludes that an eschatological posture of waiting and a heuristic of poesis should dictate the church's shape for an era in which God is stripping the church of its foregoing institutional forms.

READERSHIP: Theologians, biblical scholars, pastors, educated laypersons, and postgraduate students interested in Ephraim Radner, ecclesiology, theological interpretation, Hosea, secularism, eschatology or the state of the contemporary church.

Collaborative Practical Theology

Engaging Practitioners in Research on Christian Practices

Henk de Roest, Protestant Theological University, Groningen

Collaborative Practical Theology documents and analyses research on Christian practices conducted by academic practical theologians in collaboration with practitioners of different kinds in Christian practices all around the world. These practitioners include professional practitioners, everyday believers, volunteers and students in theological education. The book offers rationales for setting up joint investigation groups with different 'communities of practice', describes a wide range of collaborative research strategies and methods and also has a clear eye for their limitations. In Christian practices faith is mediated, enacted and nurtured. The aim of the book is to improve the utility of theological research on these practices. It communicates the vision that academic research is for the people of God in today's world.

READERSHIP: Theological institutes worldwide, academic libraries, researchers in Practical Theology, practitioners, students, consultants, everyday believers, all interested in Christian practices.

Neo-Assyrian and Greek Divination in War

Ancient Warfare Series Volume 3

Krzysztof Ulanowski

Neo-Assyrian and Greek Divination in War focuses on all divinatory practices which were used in the ancient Near East and Greece in time of war. Divination was a practical way of discovering the will of the gods, and enabled human contact with the divine. Divinatory practices were crucial to decision-taking. The results of divination were especially important during war. This book concentrates on the methods used to obtain all possible information from the divine world which could impact on the results of war. Knowledge of divine plans, verdicts and favors would ensure victory, power and eternal glory.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of religion: especially divination. For students and scholars who study the religious practices and rituals in ancient Near East and Greece and their mutual relations and influences.

Three Hundred Years of Death

The Egyptian Funerary Industry in the Ptolemaic Period

Maria Cannata, Pecking University

In Three Hundred Years of Death: The Egyptian Funerary Industry in the Ptolemaic Period, Maria Cannata provides a detailed survey of the organisation of the necropolises and the funerary workers, as well as their role in the practical aspects of the mummification, funeral, burial, and mortuary cult of the deceased, in Ptolemaic Egypt (332-30 BC). The author gathers together and synthesises hundreds of the original textual sources, as well as the relevant archaeological sources, on the organisation of the funerary industry and its practitioners, revealing important regional and chronological variations overlooked in studies focusing on a limited geographical area, a shorter timeframe, or a smaller group of documents.

READERSHIP: Scholars and researchers of ancient Egypt, and anyone interested in the mortuary rituals practiced in the Ptolemaic Period and how they compare to those of the Pharaonic Period.

Scribal Education in the Sargonic Period

Nicholas L. Kraus

Scribal Education in the Sargonic Period is an in-depth analysis of the process of education for scribes during the period of Sargonic hegemony in ancient Mesopotamia (c. 2335-2150 BCE). The book provides a holistic study of the topic, addressing the technology of writing, the school texts used in education, the languages of instruction, and the social and historical context of scribal life and an education in cuneiform writing. The topic of scribal education at such an early period of Mesopotamian history has never been addressed at length before.

READERSHIP: All persons interested in scribes, writing, and cuneiform education in the ancient Near East, and anyone interested in education and writing during an early period of history.

Mighty Baal

Essays in Honor of Mark S. Smith

Edited by Stephen C. Russell
and Esther J. Hamori,
New York University

Mighty Baal is the first edited collection devoted to the study of the ancient Near Eastern god Baal. Although the Bible depicts Baal as powerless, the combined archaeological, iconographic, and literary evidence makes it clear that Baal was worshipped throughout the Levant as a god whose powers rivalled any deity. Mighty Baal brings together eleven essays written by scholars working in North America, Europe, and Israel. Essays in part one focus on the main collection of Ugaritic tablets describing Baal's exploits, the Baal Cycle.

READERSHIP: All interested in ancient Near Eastern religion, mythology, and history and anyone wishing to better understand the context of biblical monolatry and the development of western monotheism.

G-Le

Editor-in-Chief: Dan Diner, on behalf of the Saxonian Academy of Sciences and Humanities in Leipzig
 Editorial Staff: Markus Kirchhoff (Head), Philipp Graf, Ulrike Kramme, Simon Mahling, Christian Otto,
Regina Randhofer, Frauke von Rohden, Philipp von Wussow; Alexandra Schröder, Alexandra Tyrolf
 (Assistants)

From Europe and America to the Middle East, North Africa and other non-European Jewish settlement areas, the Encyclopedia of Jewish History and Culture covers the recent history of the Jewish people from 1750 through the 1950s. Originally published in German as the Enzyklopädie jüdischer Geschichte und Kultur by J.B. Metzler Verlag (Stuttgart/Weimar) in 2011 the work includes approximately 800 entries that present the state of international research and reveal a complex portrait of Jewish life - illuminated by many maps and illustrations. Central themes convey information on topics such as autonomy, exile, emancipation, literature, liturgy, music, and science of Judaism. The encyclopedia provides knowledge in an overall context and offers academics and other interested readers new insights into Jewish history and culture. The work is an outstanding contribution to the understanding of Judaism and modernity.

The Migration of Metaphysics into the Realm of the Profane

Theodor W. Adorno Reads Gershom Scholem

Ansgar Martins, Goethe University
Translated by Lars Fischer

Ansgar Martins's The Migration of Metaphysics into the Realm of the Profane is the first book-length study focusing on Adorno's idiosyncratic appropriation of Jewish mysticism in the light of his relationship to Gershom Scholem and their shared intellectual contexts.

Rather than merely posit vague associative connections, as previous authors have often done, Martins's close reading of specific references in published and private texts alike allows him to highlight both commonalities and differences between Adorno's and Scholem's understanding of Kabbalistic tropes and the issue of metaphysics in the modern world, and to demonstrate the extent to which similarities resulted from mutual and/or third-party influences (especially Benjamin). Martins throws the specifics of their respective idiosyncratic appropriations of (Jewish) tradition into sharp relief.

READERSHIP: This book will appeal to a broad range of readers interested in Frankfurt School Critical Theory, Intellectual History, Jewish Studies, Social Theory, Philosophy of Religion, Philosophy, and German Studies.

Social Stratification of the Jewish Population of Roman Palestine in the Period of the Mishnah, 70–250 CE

Edited by Ben Zion Rosenfeld, Bar-Ilan University, and Haim Perlmutter, Bar-Ilan University and Ashkelon College

This book defines, uncovers, dissects, and arranges the economic groups in Roman Palestine in the first centuries CE. It shows that, alongside the rich and poor, there were significant middling groups that constituted the backbone of Jewish society.

READERSHIP: All interested in social stratification, society, wealth and poverty, middle classes, class identity, the history of the Roman Empire, Roman Palestine, Jews and rabbinic Judaism.

Jews in Dialogue

Jewish Responses to the Challenges of Multicultural Contemporaneity.

Free Ebrei Volume 2

Edited by Magdalena Dziackowska and Adele Valeria Messina

Jews in Dialogue discusses Jewish post-Holocaust involvement in interreligious and intercultural dialogue in Israel, Europe, and the United States. The essays within offer a multiplicity of approaches and perspectives (historical, sociological, theological, etc.) on how Jews have collaborated and cooperated with non-Jews to respond to the challenges of multicultural contemporaneity. The volume's first part is about the concept of dialogue itself and its potential for effecting change; the second part documents examples of successful interreligious cooperation. The volume includes an appendix designed to provide context for the material presented in the first part, especially with regard to relations between the State of Israel and the Catholic Church.

READERSHIP: Readers interested in interreligious studies, intercultural dialogue, Jewish attitudes towards non-Jews; anyone concerned with the problems of “othering” and the role of religion in intercultural encounters.

Pillars of Salt

Israelis in Berlin and Toronto

Lianne Merkur

In Pillars of Salt, Lianne Merkur offers an account of early 21st century immigration as experienced by Israelis in Berlin and Toronto. Commonly portrayed as contrary to the territorial emphasis of national integrity, these individuals and communities appear to explore a sense of belonging that evaluates and incorporates both foreign and familiar elements. Social media allows for an alternative space to balance between new home and homeland, studied here as developing simultaneously in multiple sites. The author makes use of innovative methodologies to document the participants' own perspectives expressed online, at events or on paper. She thereby challenges established norms of interpretation to prove that personal decisions, primarily regarding preferred language or simply self-identification, are the cornerstones of collective character.

READERSHIP: All interested in the nationalist ideology of Israel or in contemporary immigration experiences, and how both continuously evolve in North American and European contexts.
