The European Union and the Use of Force

Julia Schmidt, University of Exeter

In The European Union and the Use of Force, Julia Schmidt examines the development and activities of the EU as an emerging international military actor. The author offers a comprehensive analysis of the conditions under which the EU can engage in military crisis management operations from the perspective of EU law as well as from the perspective of public international law, with a particular emphasis on the EU's relationship with the United Nations and the EU's relationship with its Member States in the context of the use of force.

Throughout the monograph, questions of European integration in the sphere of the common security and defence policy as well as the EU's place and role within the international community are put into focus.

READERSHIP: All interested in EU external relations law and policy and anyone with an interest in international law and the use of force as well those concerned with the law of international organisations.

Group Politics in UN Multilateralism

Edited by Karen E. Smith, London School of Economics and Political Science, and Katie Verlin Laatikainen, Adelphi University

Group Politics in UN Multilateralism provides a new perspective on diplomacy and negotiations at the United Nations. Very few states 'act individually' at the UN; instead they often work within groups such as the Africa Group, the European Union or the Arab League. States use groups to put forward principled positions in an attempt to influence a wider audience and thus legitimize desired outcomes. Yet the volume also shows that groups are not static: new groups emerge in multilateral negotiations on issues such as climate, security and human rights. At any given moment, UN multilateralism is shaped by long-standing group dynamics as well as shifting, ad-hoc groupings. These intergroup dynamics are key to understanding diplomatic practice at the UN.

READERSHIP: The book should appeal to scholars, students and practitioners interested in the United Nations, global governance, multilateralism, regional organisations and the issues covered in it (climate change, nuclear weapons, etc).
