Interpreting Globalization
Polish Perspectives on Culture in the Globalized World
Edited by Leszek Koczanowicz,
Piotr Jakub Fereñski,
and Joanna Panciuchin

Globalization is a cultural phenomenon. The authors present the thematically multi-dimensional and theoretically complex contribution of Polish research on globalization. They do not approach globalization as an abstract process, instead exploring it through the lens of clearly defined factors.

READERSHIP: All interested in humanities and social sciences: cultural studies, history, history of art, philosophy, sociology, psychology. Any academic working on issues related to globalization would be interested in this volume.

Like an Animal

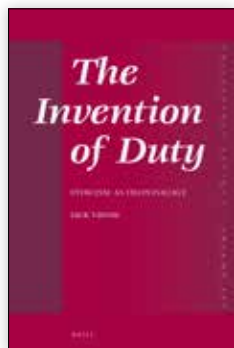

Critical Animal Studies Approaches to Borders, Displacement, and Othering

Natalie Khazaal, Georgia Institute of Technology (USA),
and Núria Almiron, Universitat Pompeu Fabra (Spain)

The contributors of Like an Animal challenge most fundamental concepts in the fields of racism, dehumanization, borders, displacement, and refugees that rest on the assumption of humanism. They show how we can bend the arc of the moral universe toward justice at the border. The goal of this interdisciplinary collection is twofold. First, to invite border/migration studies to consider a broader social justice perspective that includes nonhuman animals. Second, to start a discussion if nonhumans maybe refugees of a kind and how humans can address nonhumans' interests and needs from the perspective of addressing refugee issues.

READERSHIP: All interested in integrated approaches to social justice, human rights, animal rights, animal ethics, communication for peace, ecology and environmental activism, displacement, migration, borders, and international relations.

The Invention of Duty

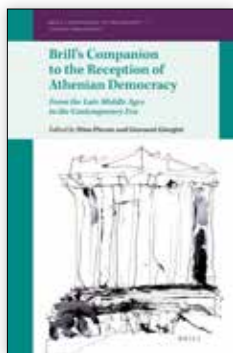

Stoicism as Deontology

Jack Visnjic, Anacyclosis Institute,
Chapel Hill (USA)

Where did the notion of 'moral duty' come from? In The Invention of Duty: Stoicism as Deontology, Jack Visnjic argues that it was the Stoics who first developed a robust notion of duty as well as a deontological ethics.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of ideas, ancient Greek and Roman philosophy, moral philosophy, Stoicism, or the philosophy of Kant; and anyone interested in the foundations of morality and the history of the concept of duty.

Modern and Postmodern Crises of Symbolic Structures

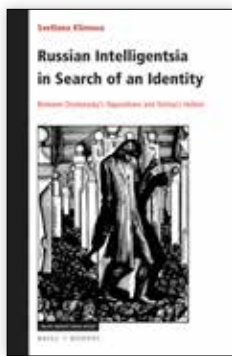

Essays in Philosophical Anthropology

Peter Šajda, Institute of Philosophy at the Slovak Academy of Sciences

In this volume, the contributions view the human being primarily as animal symbolicum who creates, interprets and is affected by symbolic structures. The book examines modern and postmodern crises of symbolic structures, which are processes of transformation that also provide new opportunities.

READERSHIP: Students and scholars interested in philosophical anthropology, humanism, social philosophy, phenomenology and symbolic structures, and anyone concerned with the critique of modernity and postmodernity.

Imagination and Art: Explorations in Contemporary Theory

Keith Moser, The University of Tennessee, Ananta Ch. Sukla, Sambalpur University

This transdisciplinary project represents the most comprehensive study of imagination to date.

The eclectic group of international scholars who comprise this volume propose bold and innovative theoretical frameworks for (re-) conceptualizing imagination in all of its divergent forms.

Imagination and Art: Explorations in Contemporary Theory explores the complex nuances, paradoxes, and aporias related to the plethora of artistic mediums in which the human imagination manifests itself. As a fundamental attribute of our species, which other organisms also seem to possess with varying degrees of sophistication, imagination is the very fabric of what it means to be human into which everything is woven. This edited collection demonstrates that imagination is the resin that binds human civilization together for better or worse.

READERSHIP: Graduate students and professors interested in the study of imagination from numerous disciplines including philosophy, world literature, literary criticism, classical studies, art, ethics, and image studies.

Maurizio Ferraris,
University of Turin

Knowledge, Art, and Power

An Outline of a Theory of Experience

John Ryder, The American University of Malta

The Idealism of Freedom

For a Hegelian Turn in Philosophy

Klaus Vieweg, Universität Jena

Maurizio Ferraris explores how, through the reading of Proust's In Search of Lost Time, one can explore memory, art, and society, using the book as a guide for living life.

In Knowledge, Art, and Power John Ryder develops a pragmatic naturalist theory of experience that posits the cognitive (knowledge), the aesthetic (art), and the political (power) as the most general and pervasive dimensions of all human experience.

In The Idealism of Freedom, Klaus Vieweg argues for a Hegelian turn in philosophy: Hegel's idealism of freedom contains a number of epoch-making ideas that articulate a new understanding of freedom, which still shape contemporary philosophy.

READERSHIP: All interested in literature, especially in French literature, but also in philosophy of literature and history. Moreover, anyone who has read Proust's masterpiece and is interested in understanding it better.

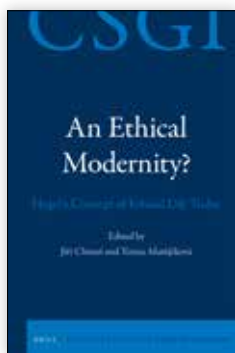

READERSHIP: All interested in experience, pragmatism, epistemology, theory of mind, aesthetics, philosophical anthropology, and social and political philosophy.

READERSHIP: All interested in German Idealism, concepts of freedom and the Philosophy of Hegel.

Äetiana Volumes I-IV

Jaap Mansfeld, University of Utrecht, and David T. Runia, Australian Catholic University

A new reconstruction and text of the Placita of Aëtius (ca. 50 CE), accompanied by a full commentary and an extensive collection of related texts. This compendium, arguably the most important doxographical text to survive from antiquity, is known through the intensive use made of it by authors in later antiquity and beyond. Covering the entire field of natural philosophy, it has long been mined as a source of information about ancient philosophers and their views.

It now receives a thorough analysis as a remarkable work in its own right. This is the five-volume set of studies on Aëtius (1996–2020): Aëtiana I (ISBN: 9789004105805, 1996), II (Parts 1&2; ISBN 9789004173569 and 9789004169876; 2008), III (ISBN 9789004180413; 2009), IV (ISBN: 9789004361454, 2018), and V (Parts 1-4; ISBN 9789004428348, 9789004428355, 9789004428362, 9789004428379; 2020). It uses an innovative methodology to replace the seminal edition of Hermann Diels (1879).

READERSHIP: Readers from the Classics, Philosophy and Theology will be interested in this work which is fundamental to the study of ancient and patristic philosophy.

Did God Care?

Providence, Dualism, and Will in Later Greek and Early Christian Philosophy

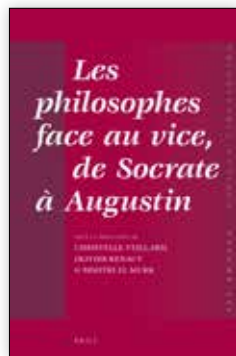

Dylan M. Burns,
Freie Universität Berlin

A Sceptical Theory of Scientific Inquiry

Problems and Their Progress

Laurence Barry Briskman,
University of Edinburgh,
Jeremy Shearmur, London School
of Economics and Political Science

Les philosophes face au vice, de Socrate à Augustin

Christelle Veillar, Université
Paris Nanterre, Olivier Renaut,
Université Paris Nanterre,
Dimitri el Mur, École Normale
Supérieure – PSL University

In Did God Care? Dylan Burns offers the first comprehensive survey of providence (pronoia) in ancient philosophy, from Plato to Plotinus, that takes into full account the importance and innovations of early Christian thinkers, including Coptic Gnostic and Syriac sources.

A Sceptical Theory of Scientific Inquiry: Problems and Their Progress presents a striking re-interpretation of Popper's 'critical rationalism'. Briskman stresses methodological argument rather than metaphysics, develops a 'Popperian' response to the Meno Paradox, and takes further Briskman's approach to problems concerning creativity.

Les philosophes face au vice, de Socrate à Augustin explores how ancient philosophers described the vices, delineated their various kinds, accounted for their causes and effects, and reflected on how to use them.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of Greek philosophy and ancient theology, particularly Platonism and Stoicism, and the themes of providence, evil, dualism, and free will and moral responsibility.

READERSHIP: Academics and students interested in the history of virtue, ethics and politics in Antiquity, and more broadly in Ancient philosophy and moral philosophy.

History as a Science

The Philosophy of R.G. Collingwood, 2nd edition

Jan van der Dussen, The Open University of The Netherlands

Since its appearance in 1981, History as a Science by Jan van der Dussen has been welcomed as a coherent and comprehensive study of the many aspects of Collingwood's philosophy of history, including its development and reception. The book was the first to pay attention to Collingwood's unpublished manuscripts, and to his work as an archaeologist and historian, herewith opening up a new angle in Collingwood studies. The republication of this volume meets an increasing demand to make the book available for future Collingwood scholars, and people interested in Collingwood's philosophy. The present edition of History as a Science includes updated references to the published manuscripts and an added preface.

READERSHIP: All interested in the philosophy of history in general, as well as all interested in Collingwood as a philosopher, archaeologist and historian, and the debates he has aroused.

After Thoughts: Beyond the 'System'

Political and Cultural Lectures by Agnes Heller

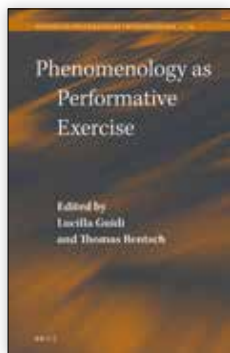

John Grumley, University of Sydney

This book is a collection of recent lectures by Agnes Heller, delivered all over the world. These essays are edited and introduced by the author of the most significant intellectual biography of her work, John Grumley. In these lectures, Heller engages one of her greatest strengths: to discover philosophy within the very flux of contemporary events. These bring together such timely topics as refugees, human rights, truth in politics and the contemporary university as well as perennial issues like the possibility of artistic representation of the Holocaust, the question whether revolutions are always betrayed, and the possibility of universality in the contemporary multicultural world.

READERSHIP: For both academic and general audiences, this book of lectures on contemporary political and cultural topics and issues is of professional and general interest.

The Ethics of Homelessness
Philosophical Perspectives.
Second, revised edition
G. John M. Abbarno,
 D'Youville College

The Ethics of Homelessness is a compilation of essays analysing the philosophical, legal and social implications of the seemingly intractable condition that people endure without a home, where their fundamental human rights, autonomy and privacy are compromised. Authors use literature and arguments to demonstrate the failings of public policy.

READERSHIP: This book could serve as a reader for undergraduate students in philosophy, religion and sociology primarily. It could also serve people who are interested in law and public policy regarding homelessness.
