Merchant Cultures

A Global Approach to Spaces, Representations and Worlds of Trade, 1500–1800

Cátia Antunes, Leiden University, and Francisco Bethencourt,
Kings' College, London

Hans Holbein's Triumphs (1532–1534), commissioned for the headquarters of the Hanseatic League in London and Kano Naizen's The Portuguese namban ('foreigners') painted in 1543 in Japan are representations of worlds of trade, where wealth, speculation, exploitation, poverty, curiosity, encounters and the exotic relate effortlessly. These worlds multiplied in Africa, the America's, Asia and Europe as mercantile cultures met in a globalizing world.

READERSHIP: This book will be appropriate to academic readers, at undergraduate and graduate level, as well as students and knowledgeable readers. Some of the chapters will be particularly interesting for a general non-academic readership.

The Bourbon Reforms and the Remaking of Spanish Frontier Missions

Robert H. Jackson

The Bourbon monarchs who ascended the Spanish throne in 1700 attempted to reform the colonial system they had inherited, and, in particular, to make administration more efficient and cost-effective. This book analyses one aspect of the Bourbon reforms, which was the efforts to transform frontier missions, to make the missions more cost-effective, and to accelerate the integration of indigenous peoples in northern Mexico to European cultural norms. In some instances, the Crown had funded missions for more than a century, but with minimal results.

READERSHIP: This study will be of interest to specialists in historical demography, colonial Latin American history, the history of the indigenous peoples of the Americas, and Borderlands history.

Encyclopedia of Early Modern History, volume 12

Religion, philosophy of - Settlers' reports

Edited by Andrew Colin Gow

The Encyclopedia of Early Modern History offers 400 years of early modern history in one work. Experts from all over the world have joined in a presentation of the scholarship on the great era between the mid-15th to the mid-19th centuries. The perspective is European. That does not mean, however, that the view on the rest of the world is blocked. On the contrary: the multifaceted inter-relatedness of European and other cultures is scrutinized extensively.

The Encyclopedia of Early Modern History addresses major historical questions:

- which ideas, inventions, and events changed people's lives?
- in which ways did living conditions change?
- how do political, social, and economic developments interlock?
- which major cultural currents have begun to become apparent?
- how did historical interpretation of certain phenomena change?

The individual articles are connected to one another as in a web of red threads. The reader who follows the threads will keep coming upon new and unexpected contexts and links.

Commerce, Citizenship, and Identity in Legal History

Dave De ruyscher, Albrecht Cordes, Serge Dauchy, Stefania Gialdroni and Heikki Pihlajamäki

Legal historians have analysed the characteristics of merchant guilds and nationes (i.e., associations of foreign merchants), as well as the political clout of merchants, including foreign ones. However, how the legal status of citizens related to the merchant class and how its contents were influenced by trade remains largely unclear.

Étienne Pasquier, The Jesuits' Catechism or Their Doctrine Examined (1602)

Robert A. Maryks, Jotham Parsons, Duquesne University, and Patricia M. Ranum

To oppose the Jesuits in France, Étienne Pasquier (1529–1615) published a dialog between a Jesuit and a lawyer. He called it the Jesuits' Catechism (1602), which remained central to anti-Jesuit agitations up to the Society's 1773 suppression and beyond.

Coping with Life during the Thirty Years' War (1618-1648)

Sigrun Haude,
University of Cincinnati

Drawing on a thousand years of European travel writing and mapmaking, Dym suggests that after centuries of text-based itineraries and on-the-spot directions guiding travelers and constituting their reports, maps in the fifteenth century emerged as tools for Europeans to support and report the results of land and sea travel. With each succeeding generation, these linear journey maps have become increasingly common and complex, responding to changes in forms of transportation, such as air and motor car 'flight' and print technology, especially the advent of multi-color printing. This is their story.

Educating the Catholic People

Religious Orders and Their Schools in Early Modern Italy (1500–1800)

David Salomoni, Universidade de Lisboa

In Educating the Catholic People, David Salomoni reconstructs the complex educational landscape that arose in sixteenth-century Italy and lasted until the French Revolution. Over three centuries, various religious orders, both male and female, took on the educational needs of cities and states on the Italian peninsula, renewing the traditional humanist pedagogy. Historians, however, have not attempted to produce a synthesis on this topic, focusing mainly on the pedagogical activities of the Jesuits and neglecting the contributions and innovations of other groups. This book addresses this historiographical gap, providing a new chapter in the comparative study of pre-modern education.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of education, culture and religion in early modern Italy.

The Worlds of Knowledge and the Classical Tradition in the Early Modern Age

Comparative Approaches

Edited by Dmitri Levitin,
All Souls College,
and Ian Maclean,
All Souls College

Recent research has established the continued importance of engagement with the classical tradition to the formation of scholarly, philosophical, theological, and scientific knowledge well into the eighteenth century. The Worlds of Knowledge and the Classical Tradition in the Early Modern Age is the first attempt to adopt a comparative approach to this phenomenon. An international team of scholars explores the differences and similarities – across time and place – in how the study and use of ancient texts and ideas shaped a wide range of fields: nascent classics, sexuality, chronology, metrology, the study of the soul, medicine, the history of Judaeo-Christian interaction, and biblical criticism. By adopting a comparative approach, this volume brings out some of the most important factors in explaining the contours of early modern intellectual life.

READERSHIP: Anyone interested in the histories of pre-modern knowledge and classical reception.

A Companion to Medieval Vienna

Edited by Susana Zapke, University of Vienna, and Elisabeth Gruber, University of Vienna

This volume offers a comprehensive introduction to the major political, social, economic, and cultural developments in Vienna from c. 1100 to c. 1500. It provides a multidisciplinary view of the complexity of the vibrant city on the Danube. The volume is divided into four sections: Vienna, the city and urban design, politics, economy and sovereignty, social groups and communities, and spaces of knowledge, arts, and performance. An international team of eighteen scholars examines issues ranging from the city's urban environment and art history, to economic and social concerns, using a range of sources and reflecting the wide array of possible approaches to the study of medieval Vienna today.

Contributors are: Peter Csendes, Ulrike Denk, Thomas Ertl, Christian Gastgeber, Thomas Haffner, Martha Keil, Franz Kirchweiger, Heike Krause, Christina Lutter, Paul Mitchell, Kurt Mühlberger, Zoë Opačić, Ferdinand Oppl, Barbara Schedl, Christoph Sonnlechner, and Peter Wright.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of medieval Vienna, in urban history, and in medieval central Europe.

Encyclopedia of Early Modern History, Volume 11

Political Journal - Religion, Critique of

Edited by Andrew Colin Gow

The Encyclopedia of Early Modern History — to be published in 15 volumes — offers 400 years of early modern history in one work. Experts from all over the world have joined in a presentation of the scholarship on the great era between the mid-15th to the mid-19th centuries.

The perspective is European. That does not mean, however, that the view on the rest of the world is blocked. On the contrary: the multifaceted inter-relatedness of European and other cultures is scrutinized extensively.

Fate and Fortune in European Thought, ca. 1400-1650

Ovanes Akopyan, University of Innsbruck

An account of Dominican activities in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales from their arrival in 1221 until their dissolution at the Reformation.

This book offers an analysis of the ground breaking mathematical work of Gregorio a San Vicente and his student and shows that the Flemish Jesuit Mathematics School had profound influence on mathematics in the seventeenth century.

This collection of essays presents new insights into what shaped and constituted the Renaissance and early modern views of fate and fortune. It argues that these ideas were emblematic of a more fundamental argument about the self, society, and the universe and shows that their influence was more widespread, both geographically and thematically, than hitherto assumed.

READERSHIP: All those interested in the Dominican Order as well as the cultural history of the British Isles, including graduate students, academics, as well as the broader educated public.

READERSHIP: All interested in the history of the Jesuits or in the history of mathematics, in particular the early history of infinitesimal calculus.

A Companion to the Reformation in Geneva

Edited by Jon Balserak, University of Bristol

A Companion to the Reformation in Geneva describes the course of the Protestant Reformation in the city of Geneva from the 16th to the 18th centuries. It seeks to explore the beginnings of reform in the city, the struggles the reformers encountered when seeking to teach, minister to, educate, and discipline the inhabitants of Geneva, and the methods employed to overcome these obstacles. It examines Geneva's relations with nearby cities and how Geneva handled the influx of immigrants from France. The volume focuses on the most significant aspects of life in the city, examines major theological and liturgical subjects associated with the Genevan Reformation, and describes the political, social, and cultural consequences of the Reformation for Geneva.

"This volume is a scholarly and very accessible introduction to the Genevan Reformation that covers history, religious developments, and impact, balancing the perspectives of both historians and theologians. The contributors present an extraordinarily well-rounded view of Geneva during the Reformation. It will be a tremendous aid to scholarship and the book that the next generation of scholars will use both as a handy reference and as the starting point for future work."

The Illustrated Afterlife of Terence's Comedies (800-1200)

Beatrice Radden Keefe,
University of Zurich

This is a book about Roman comedy, ancient theatre imagery, and seven medieval illustrated manuscripts of Terence's six Latin comedies. These manuscript illustrations, made between 800 and 1200, enabled their medieval readers to view these comedies as “mirrors of life”.

READERSHIP: All interested in the medieval reception and illustration of the Latin classics, and of Terence's comedies in particular.
